NEW SSS CHIEF BEGINS NATIONWIDE VISITS TO UNDERSTAND OPERATIONS, MEMBER NEEDS

CEBU CITY, November 19, 2026 — One month into his tenure, Social Security System (SSS) President and Chief Executive Officer Victor Alfonso A. Limlingan began his nationwide visits to SSS branch offices on Monday, with stops at local SSS offices in Toledo, Bogo, Danao, and Lapu-Lapu in Cebu province.

The visits form part of Limlingan's broader effort to deepen his understanding of the SSS, its operations, workforce, and the needs of its members and stakeholders as he lays the groundwork for sustained institutional improvements.

Since assuming office, Limlingan has been gathering information and insights through engagements with SSS officials and personnel, as well as firsthand observations of branch operations and service delivery. These efforts aim to provide a clearer picture of the organization's strengths, challenges, and opportunities for improvement.

"I look at these visits as a study tour, but it is also a thank-you tour," Limlingan said. "I want a more informal setting because that will encourage our employees to be more open and speak more candidly."

He said the visits allow management to hear directly from frontline personnel and gain a better appreciation of the realities of branch operations, as well as the concerns and expectations of members and pensioners.

Listening and learning

Limlingan's nationwide branch visits form part of a listening-and-learning process that allows him to engage directly with frontline personnel, understand operational realities, and better appreciate the concerns of members and pensioners.

Taking a deliberate and consultative approach, he said future initiatives will be grounded on actual organizational needs, field insights, and the experiences of those who deliver and receive SSS services.

The visits also serve as Limlingan's way of recognizing the dedication of SSS employees who serve millions of members nationwide.

"I believe many SSS workers are dedicated, hardworking professionals who wake up every day to serve millions of members nationwide selflessly and without complaint," he said. "But even the most dedicated worker is human, and a simple thank you will make a difference."

"So, this is my way of saying thank you to them for their hard work and dedication," Limlingan added. "If they want a picture or a selfie, that is the very least I can do for them before I can work on more substantive improvements to their work environment and compensation."

"Thank you for your hard work and commitment to our members. I hope that you will continue to provide quality service to our members and their families," he said.

Visits beyond urban centers

Limlingan visited the SSS branch offices in Toledo, Bogo, and Danao to broaden the reach of leadership engagements beyond major urban centers.

The SSS Toledo Branch serves communities along Cebu's western coast, including mining and industrial areas. The SSS Bogo Branch caters to farming communities in the northern part of the province, including areas still recovering from the 2025 earthquake. The SSS Danao Branch serves the growing trade hub at the northern edge of Metro Cebu.

Together, the three cities have nearly 280,000 working-age residents, including workers, farmers, fisherfolk, small business owners, and their families.

During the visits, Limlingan emphasized the role of SSS branch offices in bringing government services closer to Filipinos, particularly in provincial and outlying areas.

He said SSS' presence in these communities reflects the institution's commitment to keeping social security protection accessible to all workers, regardless of location.

Limlingan also shared management's ongoing thrust to expand the SSS network through additional branch offices, service facilities, and outreach mechanisms in far-flung and underserved areas.

He said bringing SSS closer to communities is not only a matter of convenience but also a critical step toward strengthening nationwide social protection coverage.

"Every Filipino worker should be able to access the benefits and services of the SSS with prompt, convenient, and responsive public service," he said.

Engagement with Cebu teams

The visit concluded at the SSS Lapu-Lapu Branch, where Limlingan met with personnel from the Lapu-Lapu Branch and employees from other SSS branch offices in Mandaue, Cebu, Cebu NRA, and Talisay serving urban Cebu.

The SSS Lapu-Lapu Branch alone serves an estimated 327,000 working-age residents. The meeting provided Limlingan with a broader view of SSS operations across the province, from outlying cities to its busiest urban centers.

Limlingan expressed appreciation to SSS employees for their dedication and commitment to serving members.

"Thank you for your hard work and commitment to our members. I hope that you will continue to provide quality service to our members and their families," he said.

Shaping service improvements

The insights gathered from the Cebu visits will help inform SSS' efforts to improve branch operations, strengthen frontline service delivery, and expand access to social security protection nationwide.

Limlingan said the nationwide branch visits will continue as part of management's engagement with field offices and its commitment to bringing SSS services closer to members and their families. #

UNIFIED NATIONAL AGENDA FOR HEALTH ENABLES LOCAL HEALTH SYSTEMS TO LEAD UNIVERSAL HEALTH CARE

Seven (7) years after the Universal Health Care (UHC) Act was signed into law in 2019, the Department of Health (DOH) continues to translate UHC policies and investments into accessible, equitable, and quality health services for every Filipino. From an initial 58 Universal Health Care - Integration Sites (UHC-IS) across the country in 2020, it has now reached 114 in 2026—equivalent to 95% of the total number of provinces, highly urbanized cities, and independent component cities.

UHC-IS consists of provinces and cities establishing their province-wide or city-wide health systems, ensuring coordinated delivery of health care services across all health facilities—from health centers to hospitals. Because of this, every Filipino, regardless of where they are in the country, is assured of better protection against catastrophic medical expenses and equal access to affordable, quality healthcare services.

To sustain these gains, the effective management and utilization of the Special Health Fund (SHF) are crucial. SHF is the consolidated fund from different sources, including nationalband local government allocations. This enables local governments to finance priority health programs, projects, and activities, support the continuous delivery of essential health services, and ensure that funds are directed where they are most needed. This helps prevent service disruptions and allows communities to benefit from more coordinated and sustainable healthcare delivery.

"The success of Universal Health Care is not measured solely by the number of integrationn-sites or the amount of funds pooled in the SHF, but by how effectively these resources are transformed into accessible, equitable, and quality health services for every Filipino. This means strengthening primary healthcare, establishing functional referral networks, improving health facility management, and ensuring that quality health services are accessible, available, and affordable to all. Through our UNA sa Pagtutulungan, I call on our national and local government and all our health partners to translate our efforts into better healthcare services and improved health outcomes for every Filipino," said DOH Secretary, Dr. Edwin Mercado.

Guided by a shared commitment to UHC's core values and DOH's Unified National Agenda (UNA) for Health, the DOH, Philippine Health Insurance Corporation (PhilHealth), and local government leaders convened for the 2026 UHC Summit and Strategic Health Partners Dialogue on November 5-6, 2026. The event was held in collaboration with the Union of Local Authorities of the Philippines (ULAP) and the World Health Organization (WHO) and was made possible with the support of the Government of Japan, the UHC Knowledge Hub, and the European Union through the UHC Partnership.

The two assemblies provided a platform to strengthen local leadership andgovernance for health, discuss provincial challenges in primary care, refine health financing mechanisms, strengthen Health Care Provider Networks, and review SHF implementation. It also underscored the importance of aligning national health priorities with local realities and strengthening coordination among the DOH, PhilHealth, local governments, and other stakeholders.

"We recognize that achieving Universal Health Care requires more than making funds available. These resources must be strategically allocated and effectively utilized to ensure that healthcare services reach every Filipino across the country, especially those in the Geographically Isolated and Disadvantaged Areas (GIDAs). Through stronger collaboration with the DOH and Local Government Units (LGUs), we aim to strengthen health financing at the local level, support the delivery of essential health services, and build a more responsive and accessible healthcare system for all Filipinos," said PhilHealth Acting President and CEO Dr. Beverly Lorraine Ho.

"The passage of the UHC Act in 2019 signaled a profound shift in the way government views healthcare. As the State declared its unwavering commitment to protect every Filipino's fundamental right to healing and well-being, the law outlined the awesome burden that the entire system would have to bear—from national to local—in the hopes of making health more equitable for all. But in this conversation, we must begin with honesty: policy frameworks, no matter how well-written, do not automatically guarantee excellent and fair service. There remain a lot of gaps between the promises of the law and the everyday realities that our citizens endure every single day. As local chief executives, we are tasked to bridge the gap between national healthcare policies and the realities down at the grassroots," ULAP Interim President and Quezon City Mayor Joy Belmonte said in her statement.

Ahead of the summit, health profiles for the country's 82 provinces were developed to ensure discussions on challenges, solutions and next steps were informed by the latest evidence. The leaders, health officers and partners at the summit jointly identified operational bottlenecks on the ground and opportunities to address them. These efforts aim to ensure seamless service delivery from local clinics up to regional hospitals.

"Achieving Universal Health Coverage requires strong local leadership, evidence-informed decision-making and effective use of health resources. Through our support for the development of 82 provincial profiles, WHO is helping local governments to identify the right priorities for improving health in their constituencies and know the investment gaps that should be addressed to make faster progress towards Universal Health Coverage. We remain strongly committed to supporting the Philippines in translating UHC commitments into quality, accessible and affordable health services for every Filipino," said Dr. Eunyoung Ko, WHO Representative to the Philippines.

These engagements advance UNA for Health, reinforcing the need for evidence-informed leadership, effective financial management, and shared accountability between national and local governments. Ultimately, the success of UHC will be measured not only by policies adopted or funds allocated, but by whether Filipinos receive quality health services, where and when they need them, without financial hardship. With sustained partnerships and decisive local leadership, the DOH and its partners continue to advance a health system na Mabilis, Patas, at Mapagkakatiwalaan para sa bawat Pilipino.

DOLE provides livelihood assistance to parents of child laborers in Cavite

The Department of Labor and Emplpyment (DOLE) Cavite Provincial Office has provided livelihood assistance to 60 parents of child laborers across the province to help improve their families' financial capacity and prevent children from engaging in work at the expense of their education and well-being.

In a press release, DOLE said the program seeks to ease the financial burden on vulnerable families by providing parents with sustainable sources of income, helping keep children away from labor.

"As parents establish steady revenue streams through their chosen enterprises, household economic pressures are relieved, directly ensuring that children are removed from labor environments and allowed to focus on their education, health, and personal growth," it said.

Under the DOLE Integrated Livelihood Program (DILP), also known as the 'Kabuhayan Program', each beneficiary from the municipality of Tanza, Indang, Rosario including the Cavite and Dasmariñas City received P30,000 worth of business start-up kits which includes food carts, baking setups, rolling talipapa units, meat processing kits, and dishwashing liquid production materials that matched to their skills and local market demand.

The program aims to reduce poverty and improve the economic conditions of disadvantaged families by helping them establish new livelihood ventures or expand existing businesses.

For one parent-beneficiary whose husband is a person with disability (PWD), receiving the DOLE livelihood grant was very meaningful as it gave her family immediate help for their daily household expenses.

"Malaking tulong po ito sa amin bilang panimula para may makuhanan kami ng pang-araw-araw na gastusin, lalo na po PWD ang aking asawa. Ako po ay lubos na nagpapasalamat sa DOLE dahil malaking tulong ito para may pagkuhanan kami ng pangangailangan sa araw-araw," she said.

In 2025, more than 868,000 Filipino children aged five to 17 were still engaged in child labor, according to the Philippine Statistics Authority.

Amid this continuing challenge, DOLE continues to strengthen its efforts to eliminate child labor by addressing its underlying economic causes, particularly poverty, through this Kabuhayan program and other interventions that empower vulnerable families and provide children with better opportunities to pursue their education and enjoy a safe childhood.

BENTE Productions brings Filipino stories to Busan's ACFM 2026

BENTE Productions Vice President Cyrene Grace Lubigan (center) attends the Asian Contents & Film Market (ACFM) in Busan, South Korea alongside company delegates.

On October 10-13, 2026, BENTE Productions Inc., a multimedia company based in the Philippines, participated in the Asian Contents and Film Market (ACFM), held in Busan, South Korea. The ACFM will offer an opportunity to connect with international streaming platforms and explore the possibility of showcasing Filipino films to a global audience.

Launched in 2024, BENTE Productions aims to shine a light on authentic Filipino stories and share them with audiences worldwide. Kusinerang Bulag, the production company's second feature film, follows the story of Luz, a passionate young cook who found herself fighting to save her family's restaurant despite losing her sight in a tragedy.

Currently, the team is preparing for its third film titled Sulat para kay Tatay (Letters for my Father), a heartwarming story about a daughter in search of her estranged father.

"Beyond building our brand, we aim to bring community stories to the forefront. It is also the reason why we created this platform, to amplify Filipino voices, showcasing both struggles and grit to the world," BENTE Productions President Ms. Marilyn Magampon Manila shared.

Beyond filmmaking, BENTE Productions carries with it the spirit of empowering communities. The multimedia company grew out of CARD Mutually Reinforcing Institutions (CARD MRI), a social development organization founded in 1986. With 40 institutions working together to eradicate poverty, CARD MRI's mission of empowerment is now finding expression on the global screen through BENTE Productions.

Joining the BENTE Productions delegation are the film's cast, winners of Sinemaya 2025, the multimedia company's annual community short film festival, along with media partners who continue to support CARD MRI's advocacy. Together, they hope to strengthen industry connections and explore opportunities for future collaborations with other production companies.

More than a milestone, BENTE Productions firmly believes that participating in events like ACFM will be a significant step toward establishing its presence and promoting CARD MRI's advocacy on the global screen.
